As It Was . . .

• We were quite interested in the picture of Winnipeg's Main Street on the back cover of the CBC Times (April 27-May 3 edition), and we thought you would like to see it as it was one day a long time ago. (See photo, below).

My husband went overseas with the 45th Battalion. My son who was two years old then and myself are watching the parade just across the street opposite the General's dais. However, he lost his life over Berlin in 1943. He was a Flt. Sgt. Engineer, 408 Squadron, and is buried in Kiel Cemetery. Three months after he was killed his son was born and is now in London, Eng. Of course you know that quite a piece of northern Saskatchewan is named after the boys who gave their lives for their country, and there is now a Davenport Lake.

Othello

• Franz Kraemer's production of Othello (Festival, April 22, CBC-TV), will surely be recorded as one of the all-time greats of Canadian Television. To its sponsor, the Trans-Canada Telephone system, the cast, the musicians and all who took part, heartiest congratulations.

J.B.S., Winnipeg.

• I would like to express my appreciation for the very fine production of Othello. All too often I thought the vocalists were not enunciating their words distinctly enough, making the libretto very difficult to follow. However, the music was delightful and the overall production was exceedingly pleasant.

—F.J.M., Winnipeg.

• Thank you for the splendid presentation of Verdi's opera, Othello . . . which you were responsible for bringing to our home. We hope that you will . . . favour us with more of such rich and enjoyable entertainment.

—R.E., Winnipeg.

Not Quite the Real Thing

• Apparently every program on television has a purpose, a moral, or at least one truth. The Nurses (Saturdays, CBC-TV), cannot be categorized in any of these. . . . The situations that happen are very unlikely. Every week the story seems to be that a head nurse either has some mental condition or is inefficient in her administrative authority. It usually takes a young flip of a student to put her in her place and put things back in order. No medical knowledge is given to the public, only false impressions of nursing. . . . I am a student nurse . . . and I would like to take "Nurse Lucas" into my school for a couple of months and allow her to see the difference between a real nurse and a "Hollywood" nurse.

—Miss S.M., Winnipeg.

More on The Establishment

• My sincere appreciation and congratulations to the CBC for the fine program on Quest entitled The Establishment, (Sunday, April 21, CBC-TV). Not only does it really show up, in a humorous way, all the many hypocracies of ourselves and of life in general, but the acting was absolutely superb, and whilst delicate subjects have at times dealt with, nothing in it was of an objectionable or obnoxious nature.

Only prudes and the very narrow minded could have objected to such a program . . . and I hope there will be many more like it. Not only is it a credit to the CBC, but it is also a credit to the fact that even though the CBC is a government organization, they can still exercise freedom of thought and choice in the selection of their programs. I don't think I have laughed so heartily and long in many a day. If we could laugh more often like it, we would forget many of the things which trouble us in this world today.

—K.H.R.S., Regina.

• I was surprised to note that you had many complaints regarding The Establishment. English humour and satire is not likely to pull any punches at the best of times. The viewers should be ready for anything as it can be so entertaining and stimulating.

—F.J.M., Winnipeg.

Good Friday

• We thoroughly enjoyed your Good Friday programming. Showing these features throughout your better programming period should have given all your viewers a greater insight into the meaning of Easter.

—Mr. and Mrs. W.E.M.,
St. Boniface, Man.

On Our Cover . . .

Leading Lady on the week-day afternoon series Take Thirty is charming Anna Cameron, an actress who prefers to do interviews. With a successful career behind her on the New York stage and on Canadian television, she says she enjoys the challenge of interviewing people before the cameras. "When you succeed you feel you have really accomplished something," she explains.

WARREN'S CORNER has changed radically. It is now an ad-lib show — completely without rehearsal. This is undertaken to maintain the freshness of reaction and expression of the young people involved. While few experiments of this kind have been successfully carried out, producer Alwyn Scott seems to have found the right formula for this type of spontaneous programming.

According to Mr. Scott, "we are exposing the overly intelligent students from Winnipeg schools to new academic stimuli in a field related to their scholastic interests, hobby, or avocation. The ability of these bright minds to cope with such matters is utterly phenomenal.

And yet the program isn't heavy, or pedantic, or even slightly bookish."

The subjects the children discuss are too advanced for many adults. Warren Davis, the host, is hard pressed sometimes to monitor the discussions. In the middle of one show, for instance, one of the youngsters proceeded to instruct those present that oxidation could occur without oxygen.

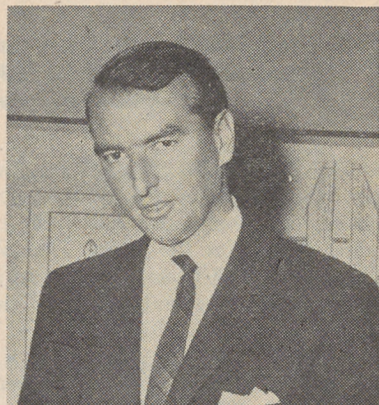

The world and those age old immutable laws governing it have so changed in the last ten years that most adults no longer speak with the same reference points with the school child of today "unless, of course," Mr. Scott points out, "that adult has had a need in his life to remain abreast of these developments as has Warren Davis."

THE CBC and Manitoba's Department of Education have just about wrapped up another year of their co-operative adventure of school broadcasting. The programming of It's Fun to Draw series, however, does not end with the signing-off of regular radio and television programs. Much of the creative fun and artwork which this particular series has produced has been exhibited since last September in various libraries in the Winnipeg area and throughout the province. During the month of May, the It's Fun to Draw pictures are on display in the regional library at Ste. Rose du Lac and in June, they move to the Virden-Elkhorn Regional Library at Virden.

IT'S A FAR CRY from Independence, Missouri, to the stomping ground of the CBC-TV Beverly Hillbillies, but Paul Henning, the writer-producer of that popular show, worked his way through school by jerking sodas in Independence.

And Nancy Kulp, who portrays bank secretary Jane Hathaway on the Beverly Hillbillies, will introduce another well-known Independence citizen during the homecoming ceremonies at Florida State University next November. She is mistress of ceremonies at the affair, and the principal speaker is former president Harry S. Truman.

Donna Douglas, who stars as Elly May on the Beverly Hillbillies, is making a personal appearance tour of Japan during May. During her tour, she will appear on several Japanese television programs, including two Nihon Television Network musical variety shows.

Warren Davis, CBC-TV announcer, is popular host of Warren's Corner and CBWT's Reach For The Top which holds its grand awards Thursday, May 30.

That Was The Week That Was

Quest's last offering of the current season includes excerpts from this most talked-about BBC satirical program

RIDING THE CREST of the satirical vogue sweeping Britain has been a freewheeling, bitingly irreverent, and sometimes hair-raising television series called That Was the Week That Was. It has been filling BBC switchboards and mailbags with cheers of commendation and howls of protest—but many more of the former than the latter. Those who curse and fear it can't stop watching it. Parliament has debated it. To the program participants nothing is sacred. The BBC has calmly ignored all criticism, giving them full rein. And the show has changed the Saturday night habits of a quarter of Britain's population.

It used to be that nothing the BBC presented on a Saturday night could attract more than a handful audience. But since the advent last fall of That Was the Week That Was (soon abbreviated to TWTWTW, and now usually referred to as TW3), hostesses began planning Saturday night dinner parties with the understanding that their guests' conversation would stop for the show. Viewers in all walks of life have sat glued to their television sets at 10:30. Even those most viciously attacked or lampooned on the show couldn't stop watching.

Punch magazine reflected the general attitude to TW3 in two cartoons. One pictured a man and wife seated before the TV set, and the wife saying: "Every Saturday you sit here terrified, waiting for that damn program to start—and if it doesn't mention you, you can't sleep." In the other cartoon an upper class couple are also watching the show. While the husband howls with laughter the wife says: "Stop laughing, you fool — they're taking the mickey out of people like us."

To let a North American audience assess this most talked-about British program for themselves, CBC-TV's Quest ends its current season on Sunday night, May 26, with a program of excerpts from TW3 shows, and interviews and comments from the milieu that has made this unorthodox type of entertainment possible. This will be the first appearance of TW3 outside Britain. Included are remarks from BBC executives whose forward thinking resulted in the series and cleared its path of restrictions, or who set the pace in other areas of television. They include Kenneth Adams, director of television; Sydney Newman, head of TV drama; Stuart Hood, comptroller of programs; and Alasdair Milne, head of the "Tonight" group that produces TW3.

After 23 weeks TW3 has gone off the air for the summer, but the BBC has assured its followers of more of the same in the fall. As CBC-TV viewers will see, TW3 is against the bad aspects of everything. The long list of its targets includes politicians, religions, royalty. Its aim, according to its witty and fearless performers, producers and large stable of top writers, is to prick pomposity and debunk the debunkable, with anything from a slight needling to blistering full-scale attack. So that the audience can catch its breath from time to time, skits are interspersed with jokes, such as "Harwich for the Continent, Paris for the incontinent."

TW3 has produced some new stars. Emcee David Frost, who does a bit of everything on the show, is becoming increasingly busy in other avenues opened up to him by his TW3 success. He's doing cabaret, writing a newspaper column, a play, and a film script, becoming increasingly affluent, and, reports

FAMILY MUSIC MAKING

The last of four Youth Concerts presented this season

WHEN COMPOSER FELIX MENDELSSOHN was a boy, he and his brother and two sisters used to take part regularly in family chamber music sessions. Two of the children were accomplished pianists, another was a gifted 'cellist, the fourth had a fine voice, and regularly, every Sunday morning, the entire family and assorted friends would gather to play and sing music of the masters. Today, the custom of family music-making isn't as popular or widespread as it was in Mendelssohn's day, but it hasn't disappeared completely, by any means. By way of illustration, CBC television's Time of Your Life series, in the last of four Youth Concerts being presented this season, will feature a program in which five of the six musical groups are made up of family ensembles. Taking part in the telecast, to be seen Sunday, May 26, will be the Armin Quartet, a string quartet consisting of three brothers and a sister from Windsor, Ont.; duo-pianists Paul and Nadine MacDonald; harpist Erica Goodman and her father, violinist Hyman Goodman; the Hamilton Recorder Quartet, composed of Sharon, Barbara, Tom and Elizabeth Hamilton of Richmond Hill, Ont.; and the Brassard Family Choir (pictured above) which includes no less than 13 singing members of one family from a small town in the province of Quebec. The one solo performer on the program is pianist Constance Shannon Douglass.

The four members of the Armin Quartet are Otto, 19, Adele, 17, and Paul and Richard, 18-year-old twins. All of them started studying music while very young, and, according to their mother, their interest in music was so great that as punishment for misbehaviour they were not permitted to practise. They all gravitated naturally to stringed instruments because both parents are violinists and Mr. Armin is a violin teacher. As individuals and as a group they have taken first prizes and medals in many music competitions, often vying with each other for top honours. Otto, who numbers at least a dozen major violin concertos in his repertoire, has been appointed concert master of the National Youth Orchestra of Canada, and two of the other Armins also were chosen to play with that ensemble. All having graduated with first-class academic honours from high school in Windsor, the Armins now attend Indiana University, where they constitute what is almost certainly the world's only resident student quartet made up entirely of members of one family.

The Hamilton Recorder Quartet, whose ages range from 16 to 19, play only for the sheer joy of it, and have no professional pretensions. Nevertheless they have won a first prize at a Kiwanis Music Festival. When Sharon, the eldest, was about seven, her uncle made her a wooden flute from an old fishing rod handle. She and her younger brother and sisters enjoyed playing the makeshift instrument so much that eventually they graduated to recorders, the ancient flute-like instruments that have undergone a rapid and widespread revival in recent years. On Youth Concert, the Hamiltons will play a Pastorale by Vivaldi, and Sinfonia e Gagliarde by Salomone Rossi.

Paul and Nadine MacDonald, 12 and 14 respectively, are both talented pianists, but they are adept at other musical skills as well. Both have done some composing, Paul plays the violin, and Nadine studies ballet and modern dance. Their offering on Youth Concert will be the Sonata in D for two pianos, K. 448, by Mozart.

EVERYTHING HAPPENS TO ERIC

Hattie Jacques and Eric Sykes appear in a series of five half-hour shows on CBC-TV

IT SHOULDN'T happen to a dog, and usually does to comic Eric Sykes. He's the well-intentioned bloke who attracts ill luck like a picnic does flies. But he doesn't mind, because his misadventures won him the British Guild of Television Producers' vote as the Entertainer of 1961. CBC viewers will again see why on Monday night, May 27, at 9:30, when the first of five half-hour shows featuring Sykes' antics is presented.

Appearing with Sykes as his sister is TV and film actress Hattie Jacques, a plump, beaver-eyed comedienne who is familiar to movie-goers who have seen the Carry On films and Make Mine Mink.

Sykes has close ties with Canada. His wife, formerly Edith Milbrandt, is a Canadian from Calgary. Cold western weather has no appeal for the comedian. He says he likes being indoors in winter, with pile carpets, good food and books. But he's such a restless creature that spring finds him curing cabin fever with mad dashes around the Surrey countryside in his car or on horseback.

He was born in Oldham, Lancashire, in 1924. His aims when he left school at 14 were undramatic. Showbusiness meant no more to him then than weekly sorties to the flicks to giggle over the foibles of George Formby. Young Eric was apprenticed to a joiner, but soon found that he didn't want to join. What he did want he wasn't sure. He worked as a painter, assistant in a fruit shop, office boy, and storekeeper in a cotton mill. In 1942, when he was 18, he was called up, joined the RAF as a wireless operator, and served in England and on the Continent. For a time he was attached to a merchant navy vessel, and finished the war in the army.

After being demobbed he decided to have a fling at showbusiness, and persuaded the Oldham Repertory Company, and later the Fortescue Company, to take him on as an actor. He broke into radio with a script he wrote for a Frankie Howard appearance on Variety Bandbox. The producers liked it so well that he was kept busy writing more material for the show and for other artists, and was soon one of Britain's top comedy writers. Next he tried television writing, with equal success, and also wrote for countless shows at the London Palladium.

Then he took to writing himself into TV spectacles, playing the well-intentioned producer who is dogged by every form of production bad luck that may occur. He became as big a name as a performer as he had ever been as a writer. The next step was inevitable. In 1960 the BBC gave him his own situation comedy show. Within 18 months he was Entertainer of the Year.

Sykes and Hattie Jacques have been appearing together since 1959, and some call her his outer-ego. A great bond exists between them, which at times amounts almost to telepathy, and although each is busy on other shows and in other media, they join forces for single shows or series whenever their careers permit.

Miss Jacques entertained troops in England during the war. Afterwards she joined the Players Theatre Company, and later the Young Vic Company. Her husband is actor John le Mesurier; they have two sons.

In the first episode of the Sykes and Jacques series, Eric and Hattie take a working holiday in the south of France, where they find jobs serving in a bistro owned by the brother of their next-door-neighbour, played by Richard Wattis. As the nearest Eric and Hattie have ever been to serving in a bistro is drinking a half-pint of beer in their local pub, the results of their employment are predictably chaotic. Their

THE CHEMISTRY OF FOOD

COWS ARE STILL THE BEST gadget for producing milk from grass, but the British are trying to perfect a machine to do the same thing, and the latest model does a pretty good job. Its product looks like milk, and is just as nutritious. The trouble is, it tastes like grass.

Chemistry is creating exciting new and complex things but none of the processes begins to approach the sophisticated chemistry by which the human body is manufactured from the chemical raw materials in food.

CBC-TV's The Nature of Things explores the chemistry of food in a program on Sunday, May 26. It explains what properties food must have to fuel the body properly, how the human machine uses the fuel, and what new advances chemistry is making in solving what many consider to be the 20th century's most critical problem—the lack of adequate food to feed the rapidly expanding world population. Participants include Professor Gordon Clark of the department of zoology, University of Toronto; John Irwin of the public relations department of Imperial Oil Limited, who wrote the script; and host Donald Crowdis of the Nova Scotia Museum of Science.

Most of the food we consume goes to produce heat energy to keep us warm, mechanical energy to keep us mobile, electrical energy to keep us thinking, and chemical energy to keep the complicated factories of our bodies functioning. It is estimated that a billion people, a third of the world's population, are suffering from insufficient proteins, the fundamental units of life. Their bodies aren't getting enough materials to produce the energy they need. This doesn't mean that they are always hungry, but they are poorly fed, and as a result suffer from stunted growth, are susceptible to disease, and tire easily.

Our bodies take the food proteins, break them into hundreds of forms to make new blood cells, lymph tissue, hair, heart muscle, etc. There are millions of different proteins, but they are all built from 20 simple chemicals, only eight of which are really needed—the amino acids, and if you don't get these eight in your food, you're out of luck, because your body can manufacture the other 12 if it has to, from the essential eight, but it can't make the eight on its own. That's why the threat of protein deficiency is so great. It is widespread in the Far East and China, and parts of Latin America and Africa.

Populations are expanding too fast for the food gap to be closed with conventional methods of supplying protein. One answer, perhaps, would be to produce food without farming, through chemistry. But while synthetic food could be quite as nutritious as naturally-grown food, aesthetically it usually leaves a lot to be desired. Its appearance and taste put people off. Most of us are pretty finicky about what we will eat. Maggots, grubs, earthworms and mealy bugs are excellent sources of protein, and quite palatable, nutritionists assure us, but only those on the edge of starvation, or jaded sophisticates are willing to eat them. During the Second World War some inmates of concentration camps kept alive by eating maggots. And there's a fair market for toasted grasshoppers or chocolate-coated bees among the cocktail set. But as a steady diet? Not on your life, says the hungry worker who wants a solid meat-and-potatoes meal at the end of a hard day, and what's more, he wants his meat and potatoes to taste and smell like the real thing. There's not much satisfaction in swallowing pure chemicals, although most of us eat some relatively pure chemicals every day without realizing it.

The green scum on a stagnant pond is an excellent source of protein. An ordinary farmer can produce about two tons of normal crops per acre per year, but an algae farm can yield 20 times as much. Algae are grown in tanks or ponds—even in sunny desert areas. You can be thrifty and grow algae in sewage water—it cleans up the water at the same time. Algae are about half protein, having a higher protein, fat, and vitamin content than all other plant materials, except for a few seeds. Although the thought of digging into a steaming dish of algae is revolting to most of us, they are such a prolific source of protein that they're being considered seriously as astro food. The space traveller could grow the algae enroute in a tank in his craft. The algae would thrive on the carbon-dioxide produced by the crewman, and he would consume the oxygen it would give off. Even if he weren't revolted by the knowledge that the algae were fed by his own metabolic wastes, he would probably get so tired of algae stew, algae soup, algae a la mode, algae Stroganoff, etc., that he'd cut the trip short and hustle back to earth and hamburgers.

The possibilities in the field of manufactured food from chemicals are many—petroleum flour is one, containing 70 per cent as much protein as eggs. Animals don't turn up their noses at it when it's mixed with their natural food. Perhaps man will develop a taste for a petroleum layer cake or toasted crude oil bread. Meanwhile, the dirt farmer is still in business—one that grows more valuable every day.

Program Notes

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and addit'l program information

Country Calendar

Today's guest, John Howden, of the Provincial department of agriculture, discusses the control of the Canadian thistle. He indicates the history, and methods of control by the use of chemicals.

Youth Concert

The fourth and final concert of the season is introduced by Harry Somers. Appearing in the program are:

1. The Hamilton Recorder Quartet:
Pastorale ..... Vivaldi
Sinfonie ..... Salomone Rossi
Gagliarde ..... Salomone Rossi

2. Twelve-year-old Paul MacDonald and his 13-year-old sister Nadine play:
Sonata in D major for Two Pianos, K. 448 ..... Mozart

3. The Brassard Family Choir from rural Quebec sing:

La Prisonier de la Tour
A la Claire Fontaine
Le Joyeux Promeneur

4. Young Toronto harpist Erica Goodman and her father, Hyman, the concert-master of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, play:

Mademoiselle de Paris

In this half-hour documentary program, Parisienne actress Mlle. Evelyn Dandry shows viewers some of the unusual places of interest, and shares her conversations with interesting people as she travels about Paris.

Heritage

Portrait of a Primate. An interview with the Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, the Anglican Primate of all Canada.

The Twentieth Century

Ethiopia: The Lion and the Cross. Part 2. A special two-part report on one of Africa's most backward countries in the process of reluctant change and on its 71-year-old absolute ruler, Emperor Haile Selassie, Lion of Judah.

Today's program includes an interview with Emperor Haile Selassie and a religious ceremony in a Coptic church, one of the oldest Christian churches in the world. The living conditions of the Galla tribe of warriors are seen, together with a look at modern Ethiopia—with a jet-equipped air force and an international jet airport.

The Valiant Years

Take One with You. Churchill's plans to oppose any Nazi invasion of Britain "on the beaches" take shape. Churchill begins to correspond with FDR, and Lend Lease is created. Rudolf Hess makes a mysterious flight and lands in Scotland.

The Nature of Things

The Chemistry of Bread. Baking bread may be a familiar process, but it is by no means a simple one. A very great number of fundamental chemical actions are demonstrated in the baking of one loaf of bread.

On today's program Dr. Fred H. Knelman of Montreal looks at bread-baking from the chemist's point of view, using illustrations ranging from stone ovens to production lines.

Walt Disney Presents

The Horse of the West. A documentary drama illustrating the role of the quarter horse; how it is trained for the cattle ranch and the show ring. The narrator for the film is cowboy-singer Rex Allan.

Hazel

Mr. Griffith Throws a Wedding. Wealthy Harvey Griffith interferes with the wedding plans of a young couple, who consequently quarrel. Hazel of all people is chosen as moderator.

Flashback

Special guest panelist is Mary Schom, choral director.

Bonanza

Little Man — Ten Feet Tall. In teaching an Italian immigrant an important lesson, Hoss Cartwright shows he has taken his father's lessons to heart.

Quest

A program on contemporary television, featuring excerpts from the highly successful BBC series — That Was The Week That Was.

CBWT—A Song For You

Singer-pianist Jose Poneira is joined by vocalist Maxine Ware and an accompanying combo in a program of popular music. Producer, Perry Rosemond.

PORTRAIT OF A PRIMATE

The Most Reverend Howard Hewlett Clark, Primate of the Anglican Church in Canada is the subject of Heritage

THE WORD is the seed, and the words spoken on an autumn Sunday morning 59 years ago reaped a bountiful harvest. The speaker was an energetic young minister,

REV. H. H. CLARK

Reverend Fred Tyne and to his pioneering Western Canadian Congregation he offered a challenge: "If only mothers would dedicate their young sons to God we would have the clergy we need in this growing part of Canada." This simple sermon became the call for a young boy who rose in faith to become the Anglican Primate of

CBXT—How To Marry A Millionaire

The Prince Kaudim Story. Greta, Mike and Loco find themselves in the middle of an exotic adventure when they are visited by a handsome, Eastern prince.

CBXT—Ladies First

Dr. Hugh Harries, Dean of Commerce at the University of Alberta, is the guest this afternoon. Also on the program, Madeleine Dunkley continues her work on the "Lawrence of Arabia" turban she is showing viewers how to make.

Sing Ring Around

In this children's program, hostess Donna Miller and her monkey friend Cheeky present songs and stories from their music room.

Take Thirty

Hilda Mortimer interviews Jessie Richardson of Vancouver who has been a designer and maker of theatrical costumes for many years. She is involved in all major theatrical productions and festivals held in B.C., and gives lectures about costuming.

CBWT—Ladies First

What can we learn from people in the Orient? Guest is Betty Tomlinson, CBC Talks producer, who recently returned from a five month visit to the Orient.

Razzle Dazzle

Mr. Sharpy, pinch-hitting for Al Hamel, gets everything all mixed-up. To compound Mr. Sharpy's mistakes, Howard tells some more batty bedtime stories. Among them, a new version of the Aesop fable—The Fox and The Grapes.

CBXT—Tales of the Riverbank

The Rummage Sale. Roderick persuades Turtle not to throw away his grand piano, and this incident gives the rest of the animals the idea of holding a rummage sale.

CBXT—Gateway

Hosts Jim Crossen and Colin MacLean present the timely and the topical on the Edmonton scene. On film, pitcher Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers and the rest of his teammates describe the basic fundamentals of baseball.

Don Messer's Jubilee

Music and song from Halifax with Don Messer and his Islanders, Marg Osburne, Charlie Chamberlain, the Buchta Dancers and guests.

Guests are the husband and wife entertainers Fritz and Marili Tschannen from Ste. Marguerite Station, Que. Numbers include:

Helen Polka	Marg
French Minuet	Buchta Dancers
I Had Someone Else	Charlie
Johnny Waggoner	Islanders
John Henry	Vic Mullen

The Danny Thomas Show

British Sense of Humour. Danny obtains a temporary membership in an exclusive London club, and at the same time gets an insight of what makes the British laugh.

The Garry Moore Show

Garry's guests this week include musical comedy stars Carol Lawrence and Nancy Walker; British comedian Roy Castle; and the folk singing satirists—The Smothers Brothers.

Eric Sykes

Eric Sykes and the Holiday. Eric and his sister Hattie sign up for a working holiday in the south of France. Predictably, the language barrier turns the adventure into that special form of Sykes' chaos.

Camera Canada

The Wilderness. This hour-long documentary takes a look at the wilderness country of British Columbia, Alberta and the Yukon. It attempts to show why the residents of these areas prefer the excitement, challenge and danger on the edge of civilization to an easier urban life. The program also carries with it the significance that it is a tribute to CBC producer Norm Caton and cameramen Len MacDonald and Charles Riegler. All three were killed in a plane crash in Alberta last February while working on this assignment.

CBWT—Surfside 6

The Green Beret. The army recalls ex-Ranger Dave Thorne to trap a saboteur.

IN THE EARLY stages of the season, the 1963 major league baseball schedule is providing many surprises. A pleasant surprise for the rabid fans of the New York Mets is the aggressive play of their baseball club, which last year lost over 120 games, but this season is close to the .500 mark. In early series the once hopeless Mets swept four from the Milwaukee Braves and five in a row from Philadelphia and Cincinnati.

Led by the home-run hitting of young Jim Hickman and the veterans Duke Snider and Frank Thomas, the Mets can no longer be taken lightly. On the mound, they have received strong performances from big Roger Craig, a much better pitcher than his 22 losses last season indicate, and the little left-hander, Al Jackson.

Today, fans in Canada will have their first look at the Mets, as they journey to St. Louis to take on the Cardinals in beautiful Busch Stadium. The Cards, early season leaders, have slipped back somewhat from their torrid pace. The Cards hit well for average but, without too much power, have one of the major leagues' top in-fields in White, Javier, Groat and Boyer, and several top starters in Simmons, Washburn and Broglio. Their apparent weaknesses are in relief pitching, bench strength and catching. At the time of this writing, the Cards are only half a game behind the San Francisco Giants in the extremely tight National League race.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox, with some great pitching by Ray Herbert, and home-run hitting from Dave Nicholson, hold down the number one perch. Nicholson is the former $100,000 Baltimore Oriole bonus

Junior Bookshelf: The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe, by C. S. Lewis. A tale set in an enchanted land called Narnia, where good and evil exist.

Take Thirty

1. Montreal music critic Eric McLean has just bought Papineau House—an old house in the Bonsecours market district, which he is redecorating. A film visit is made to the house.

2. Guest is Robert Mirvish, the brother of Toronto's super-salesman and theatre-owner "Honest Ed" Mirvish. He is a merchant seaman, an author and a confirmed bachelor with strong ideas about women.

3. John Livingston presents an item about communication in the animal world.

A popular host of a popular program, Fred Davis has suavely guided Front Page Challenge to a top spot in Canadian television viewing each Tuesday evening.

Ladies First

Some major problems facing hospital administrators and some of the solutions being developed are discussed this afternoon as guests include delegates to the Western Canada Hospital Institute. Topics range from hospital architecture to new methods of data processing and the function of hospital trustees.

Razzle Dazzle

Mr. Showbiz and the Turtlesell Players present Robin Turtle! Bandit of Sherwood Forest. Tom Kneebone plays the Sheriff of Nottingham, and Michele stars as Maid Marion. Also on the program, George Feyer draws another Richard the Lion adventure.

CBXT—Gateway

Tonight's program shows a film on the Ordination Services of the Alberta Conference of the United Church of Canada.

Perry Mason

The Case of the Nimble Nephew. A man tries to test the honesty of his two nephews, but the test of honesty suddenly becomes a murder. Featuring William H. Wright, Bert Convy, and Joel Lawrence.

Front Page Challenge

Regulars Pierre Berton, Gordon Sinclair, and Ketty Kennedy, are joined by a guest panelist to try and identify famous news headlines associated with guest challengers appearing on the program.

The Other Man

Fifth of a six-part, CBC-produced British mystery thriller by Francis Durbridge, one of England's top mystery writers. Starring Douglas Rain with Tony Van Bridge, Angela Leigh, Victoria Mitchell, Michele Learned, William Osler, Ivor Barry and John Kastner.

CBWT—The Dakotas

Incident at Rapid City. Deputy Del Stark stands between an angry mob and his sweetheart's father.

difficulties begin when they discover that in France people speak French. Eventually they get back to England without causing an international incident—but only just.

In the June 3 program Eric wants to be like everybody else—have a charge account at the various stores in his neighbourhood and settle at the end of the month. The tradespeople are quite happy to open accounts for him—provided he can give a bank reference. At the bank he is told he can have a reference only if he has an account there. When he asks to open an account, the teller tells him he will first have to provide the bank with two references from tradespeople with whom he has an account. An impasse? Not at all. Sykes' financial brain beats them all with wizardry that would shake Wall Street.

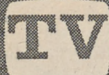

An unknown hero rescues a pretty girl from certain death in the river in the June 10 show. Sykes, who was fishing nearby at the time, is hailed as the hero. Modestly he tries to deny it, but Hattie is too thrilled to believe him. Even neighbour Richard Wattis wants to think Eric made the rescue, and sells the bewildered Sykes to a national advertising stunt. "I like Sykes" is the catch-phrase on everybody's lips—for a while.

Worried over the cost of living, Eric decides to effect domestic economies in the Sykes household, in the June 17 episode. His first concern is with the cost of eggs, and his solution is to enter the egg production business himself. To the dismay of Hattie, the amused interest of neighbour Brown, and the nightly disturbances of the neighbourhood, the scheme goes forward. After a visit from the police Eric discards mechanical incubators, and plays a more active part in the natural process. At this stage the doctor is called in. But the final product of the Sykes enterprise does not turn out to be a chicken.

Eric Sykes, the super salesman of encyclopedias, comes your way in the June 24 episode. After the Sykes treatment you will be a mine of information.

CBWT—All Star Golf

From the Firestone Country Club, Akron, Johnny Potts plays Tommy Bolt.

Symphony Orchestra, is one of Canada's best-known instrumentalists. His daughter Erica, though still in her early 'teens and a full-time high school student, has already established herself as an experienced professional musician. She has been engaged many times as an orchestral harpist with both the CBC and Toronto Symphony Orchestras, and has appeared with other musical groups in and around Toronto. On Sunday's program she will join her father in a performance of Saint Saens' Fantaisie, opus 124, for violin and harp.

The 12 girls and one boy who make up the Brasard Family Choir are from the Quebec town of Repentigny, and they specialize in singing traditional songs and folk music reflecting their French heritage. The 12 girls range in age from eight to 22; the sole male member, Bernard, is also the youngest, at age six.

The solo pianist on Sunday's program, Constance Shannon Douglas, was born and brought up in Calgary, but in recent years she has been studying at the Juilliard School of Music in New York and has been giving concerts in eastern Canada. She will play two works on the telecast: the Prelude No. 8, by Swiss composer Frank Martin, and Ondine, by Ravel.

The host of Youth Concert will be Harry Somers, one of Canada's best-known composers and commentators on music.

Program Notes

MAY 30

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and add'l program information

CBXT-How To Marry A Millionaire

The Truthivac. Loco goes on a television program to have an electronic brain choose her ideal mate.

National School Telecasts

Patterns of Living. The last of six programs written and narrated by Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, head of the department of zoology at the University of British Columbia. The series illustrates the principle that all living animals share the common properties of ability to propagate, to react to their environment, and to obtain food and convert it to their use.

Today, Display. An examination of the various facets of "display" in the life of animals—how it is used in mating, warning and in attracting attention.

Take Thirty

1. Thirty grade 11 and 12 students will be attending the Royal Canadian Institute Science Seminar led by Dr. C. D. Fowle, chairman of the biology department of York University. Dr. Fowle and one of the students appear on today's program.

2. Barbara Green presents some interesting views about art by some of her young friends.

Ladies First

1. Marilyn Phillips presents a fashion feature based on a Personality Appraisal and how one's personality can be reflected in wardrobe, perfume, accessories and surroundings.

2. Mat Gauer gives a recipe for delicious coconut bread.

Razzle Dazzle

Larry and Garry turn efficiency experts and stock brokers. As part of this business program, J. J. Higgenhoward of Consolidated Pretzel tells us some of the fine points involved in buying and selling on the stock market. The comic for the day shows a shaggy dog story about a man who loved cake.

CBXT-Gateway

Tonight's feature is Guidepost — spotlighting Alberta's great outdoors, sports and recreational activities.

CBXT-Dobie Gillis

Put Your Feet In Our Hands. To impress an ambitious girl, Dobie goes to work in her father's shoe store—and fails miserably.

CBWT-Stop, Look and Listen

Singer Georges LaFleche is special guest on the puppet show today. His French Canadian charm thrills Henrietta and consequently makes Charlemagne jealous. Georges finds he has fans everywhere however, and even wins Charlemagne over in the end.

Outdoors With Per Holting. Per visits a wild goose sanctuary in Manitoba's Whiteshell Forest Reserve where he and cameraman Paul Guyot make a close-up study of the graceful Canada Goose.

CBXT-West On Five

They are: Elmwood High School; Daniel McIntyre; and the combination of St. Paul's-Joseph Wolinsky High Schools. Host is Warren Davis. Producer, Jean MacKay.

PORTRAIT OF A PRIMATE (Continued from page 11)

all Canada. The Most Reverend Howard Hewlett Clark, D.D., looking back says "My whole being responded to this call and I can never think of a time when I did not want to become a parson."

Dr. Clark's career from youthful inspiration to attainment of the highest office in his church will be presented Sunday, May 26, on CBC-TV's Heritage series. The program "Portrait of a Primate" is the second study of a religious leader in the series—a week prior "Portrait of A Moderator" featured the Right Reverend J. R. Mutchmor of the United Church of Canada as its subject.

Dr. Clark, a lean six-footer, was the son of a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman and a mother who was possessed of a real and living faith. Born into a young Western Canada in great need of the Church the child was dedicated to the faith before he was a year old. A native of Fort Macleod, Alberta, he preached his first sermon as a layman at the age of 17. A year later he founded an Anglican mission at Capreol near Sudbury, Ontario.

The years working toward ordination were difficult ones. After two terms at University his studies were interrupted by lack of funds. "For five years I worked in an insurance office but during this time I never lost sight of my dedication. This was a good test for me," says Dr. Clark.

He was ordained in Ottawa in 1932 and went on to set a record of service in the capital city. For twenty-two consecutive years, first as curate then as rector, canon and dean his home was Christ Church Cathedral.

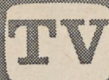

In 1954 Dr. Clark was elected Bishop of Edmonton and five years later succeeded the Most Reverend Walter Barfoot as Primate of Canada.

Dr. Clark tells his story to interviewer Lyal Brown on the May 26 Heritage presentation. He will also express his views and hopes concerning the many perplexing questions facing his church today.

CBWT—Biography

Dwight D. Eisenhower. Part 2. Story of the 34th President of the United States. In June, 1942, during World War II, he was named Allied commander of the European theatre of operations and headed the invasions of North Africa and Europe that led to the defeat of Italy and Germany. He led the Republican Party to victory in the election of 1952 and again in 1956.

SPORTS

baby, whom the "birds" peddled to Chicago this season. Nicholson, who also played in the Northern Baseball League with Aberdeen, has belted seven home runs thus far.

Kansas City, sitting in second spot, is the big surprise in the American League. However, that bubble could burst rather quickly as two pitchers, Bill Fischer and Orlando Pena, have been shouldering pretty well all the load on the mound, and only a miracle would allow them to maintain that type of performance over an entire season.

CBC Television cameras will also focus on the bowling lanes Saturday in covering the finals of the O'Connor Bowl Open in Toronto. Fred Sgambatti will describe the highlights of play as competitors from all across Canada participate.

CBC Radio takes sports fans across the pond Saturday morning for two big events. The first will be the 184th running of the Epsom Derby, one of the horse racing world's top annual events. This will be followed by the Football Association Cup final, played at Wembley Stadium in London. The teams battling it out will be Leicester City and Manchester United. And for those who may also wish to watch the game, a film of the contest will be shown on CBC-TV's World of Sport feature, one week later, on June 1.

CBC STAGE

Maritimes writer Shirley Fowke is the author of the CBC Stage play which another Maritimer, J. Frank Willis, will produce this Sunday night, May 26, on CBC radio. Titled The Devil and the Heather, it's a delightfully fey adventure in a highland setting—but you could picture it happening in Cape Breton.

Miss Fowke's devils are rascals, but almost lovable ones, in the Scots tradition. One of her first plays to draw critical approval was Devil Take All, presented by the Queen's Summer Theatre in 1949. It was the robustly humorous story of a good-natured, reckless French-Canadian who pledged his soul to the devil, and then found that the results of his wishes were not quite what he had expected.

One of Miss Fowke's first full-length plays, Star in the Night, won first prize in a drama competition sponsored by the Hermit Club of Cleveland, and her Mistuh Job, a Negro version of the Book of Job, submitted to the same contest, was produced by a Negro group in Cleveland. The CBC has broadcast several of her plays and a number of her one-act dramas have been performed on stage by North American groups. Miss Fowke is also known as a poet.

She was born in Ottawa, where her father was M.P. for Ontario Riding during the Borden administration. After he was sent to Halifax to investigate the explosion there in 1917, he and his family settled in Bridgewater, N.S. Miss Fowke attended the University of Toronto.

Triumph of the Human Spirit

THE BODY BLOW, a radio ballad of the battle with polio fought by Norma Smith, Paul Bates, Jean Haggar, Heather Ruffell and Ken "Dutchy" Holland, told by them and set to the singing of Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger, with Bryan Daley, guitar, Alf Kahn, clarinet, and Alf Edwards, concertina, is presented on CBC radio's Venture, this Sunday afternoon, May 26, at 5:00. It was produced for the BBC by Charles Parker, with the help of the Polio Research Fund.

The program explores the case histories of five people paralyzed in various degrees by polio, striking into their personal experiences to highlight the triumph of the human spirit, and the attractiveness of the character and personality of the five.

"I believe," says Parker, that in this particular respect the microphone is mightier than the camera, even though two of the five, Paul Bates and Ken Holland, have had tracheotomies and breathe by machine, which makes speech for them rather more difficult than for most of us; while a third, Heather Ruffell, also paralyzed below the neck, has mastered what is called 'frog breathing,' a special technique of breathing by, as it were, 'swallowing' air. Of the other two, Mrs. Jean Haggar has lost the use of her left arm and of the upper part of her right arm, yet manages to run her home and look after her husband and teenage daughter; and Mrs. Norma Smith runs her flat and holds down an office job—and her eight-year-old daughter—from a wheelchair."

Charles Parker's skill as a producer of unusual broadcasts based on fact was recognized internationally when his Singing the Fishing won the documentary award in the 1960 Italia Prize Competition. Ewan MacColl and Peggy Seeger have collaborated with him in other radio ballads, among them Song of a Road, and The Big Hower.

London Sunday Times columnist, "Atticus," "his waistline is thickening up (at 24), and he goes to the barbers two or three times a week (the barber says Frost leaves a taxi waiting outside, which is almost better than turning up in a Rolls)."

The son of a Methodist minister, Frost has shaken up so many individuals and institutions with his remarks that voices in the House of Commons have demanded to know "what steps are being taken to curb this man Frost?" To the delight of millions, the answer to date has been "None." Protests have poured in to the BBC after each program at such a rate that the newspapers have carried a box-score the day after each show. But protests represent by far the minority reaction, and the BBC, which used to be called "Aunty" by those who thought it was rather straight-laced, steadfastly refuses to censor TW3.

Frost does some devastating profiles on well-known people, often tearing them to shreds with a few words, and always ending with: "But seriously, though, you're doing a grand job"—which has become the latest British catchphrase. Often the cast of TW3 gets so wound up in its subjects that the 50-minute show runs overtime to an hour or an hour-and-a-quarter or longer. They deny that they're anarchists trying to make people uncomfortable, as some of their antagonists charge. They claim a moral purpose—to point out, albeit in no uncertain terms—some of the hypocrisies of public life.

Another TW3 personality, William Rushton, is a brilliant mimic who shows no favouritism. If he lampoons a political leader, he rags the opposition leader as well. Lance Percival is a raw-boned TW3 comedian seen in Canada in the Carry On films and in Twice Around the Daffodils, whose rather innocent-looking blue eyes make his verbal bastings seem all the more breathtaking. Millicent Martin is an attractive-voiced blonde who has skyrocketed in popularity through her TW3 appearances to the point where she can choose her own guest appearances and her own fees.

Bernard Levin, a small man with thick, dark hair and thick glasses, who has been both feared and loved in the theatrical and political fields for his wickedly searing pen, has done a short conversational interview in each edition of TW3, his victims usually being union leaders, politicians and others who, he felt, might have taken a ridiculous stand on some question the previous week. Farmers knew they were for it on one show when Levin made his appearance with "Good evening, peasants." But the farming members of the invited studio audience gave him a stiff run for his money with their pertinent heckling, which made him wish he had boned up on his subject a little better. Some viewers think he's terribly clever and sophisticated; others think he makes a fool of his interviewees only to show off his own knowledge. But nobody would dream of turning off the TV set while he's on the screen.

Frequent complainers about the series are religious bodies. A recent TW3 item concerned what the show termed the use of hymns by automobile manufacturers to plug their products—for example, the frequent mentions of Victor, Triumph, Standard, etc., in some of the Sunday school favourites. Frost ended the skit with the remark: "I've got to go, now, Jesus wants me for a Sunbeam." Most religious bodies took this joke in their stride, but some irate calls were received at BBC television headquarters from viewers who thought David Frost had overstepped the limits of good taste. That little sally was mild compared with some of the remarks he gets away with.

Among the TW3 extracts to be seen on Quest will be two songs: Honest to God, about the Bishop of Woolwich, and one about smoking; items on suggestive literature, Lord Beaverbrooke, and an artist's views on the kind of painting required for exhibition by the Royal Academy; a lecture on the modern RAF; and a skit about Henry Brooke who kicked "sick" comedian Lennie Bruce out of England.

Holiday Mood Programming

WITH THE balmy weather come thoughts of holidays, and CBC four new hour-long holiday shows Radio gets into the mood with the of light music and variety to be heard weekly at 9:00 p.m.

The series was off to a gay start with Broadway Holiday on Monday, April 29, which is to feature some of the top Canadian and U.S.

entertainers backed by Canada's best big-band arrangements.

The second of the new variety specials, Continental Holiday, bowed in on Thursday night, May 2. It will offer some of the popular music currently being played and sung in Europe. An orchestra and chorus conducted by Ivan Romanoff was heard in the first show, with soprano Lesia Zubrack. Romanoff's groups will be heard through the series.

Starting Tuesday night, July 2, Country Holiday will round up some of the big names in country and western music, not only from across Canada but from American centres such as Nashville. With Gordie Tapp as host, the shows will go on the air before audiences in towns and cities in Southern Ontario.

Beginning on Friday, July 5, another holiday show will be offered weekly in two half-hour segments. The first will consist of musical programs from Canada's Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and the second will feature Dixieland music played by groups in Toronto and Montreal.

BRITISH SPORTS

Two top British sports events are highlighted on CBC Radio and Television

TWO MAJOR BRITISH sporting events take place this week, and CBC radio and television networks will provide coverage of them. On Saturday, May 25, the Football Association Cup Final will be played at Wembley Stadium, London; live coverage will be carried on CBC radio that day, and a film of the entire game will be shown on CBC-TV's World of Sport one week later, on Saturday, June 1. The other event is one of the world's most famous horse races, the Epsom Derby. It will be run on Wednesday, May 29, at Epsom Downs, and the BBC coverage of the race — by commentators Roger Mortimer and Peter Bromley—will be broadcast live on the CBC radio network.

The F.A. Cup Final, usually played early in May, had to be postponed this year because the unusually harsh winter weather forced postponement of many games throughout the regular season. All the amateur and professional soccer teams in England that are recognized by the English Football Association take part in the Cup elimination competition, which is run separately from regular league play. The most outstanding Cup team of recent years has been the Tottenham Hotspurs, thought by some soccer buffs to be the strongest team in England's history. The Spurs have set or matched two records for this century: In 1961 they won the championship of the British Soccer League, then went on to take the F.A. Cup, a feat accomplished only once before, in 1897 by Aston Villa. Last year they won the F.A. Cup for a second consecutive year, becoming the second team of the century to do so (Newcastle won the Cup in both 1951 and '52). For all their brilliance, however, Hotspurs didn't make it to the final this season. On May 25, the teams meeting at Wembley will be Leicester City and Manchester United. The BBC commentators for the event will be Alan Clarke, Raymond Glendenning, and John Camkin.

Wednesday's running of the Epsom Derby will be the 184th renewal of that event. It was in 1779 that a group of England's leading sportsmen met, at the Epsom home of the 12th Earl of Derby, to discuss plans for a horse race to be held the following May on the Epsom Downs. The usual distance for races at that time was four miles, but earlier that year a shorter distance had been tried—one and one-half miles — and the gentlemen wanted to try more races at the shorter distance. Sir Charles Bunbury, a steward of the Jockey Club, put forward some conditions for the forthcoming event: "... a race for three-year-old fillies and colts, to start at the Parish of Banstead, half-mile east of Tattenham Corner, and to continue thence to the winning post." All were in favour of the idea, the conditions were accepted, and, in honour of their host of the evening, the gentlemen named the race for the Earl of Derby. A few months later Sir Charles Bunbury's colt, Diomed, handily won the first Derby, on May 4, 1780, before a handful of spectators.

Nowadays the handful has grown to half a million, as thousands upon thousands of fans — from royalty and the cream of international society to touts, tipsters, gypsies and Pearly kings and queens — pour into Epsom, intent on a jolly outing amid the colourful carnival atmosphere that now surrounds the race.

The latter event is a rather rough and ready, confused affair, compared to the comparatively well organized nature of most races. Technically, the Derby is "flat racing" feature, but the horse-shoe-shaped turf course at Epsom is far from flat. It winds uphill and down again, veering off first into a dogleg to the right, then back to the left, around a hairpin turn and finally downhill in a long straight stretch to the finish line. Usually about 30 horses are entered in the Derby, and with that many mounts vying for choice positions while converging, swinging wide, bunching up, and sweeping back and forth from one rail to another, confusion and danger become the order of the day. Last year's race was marked by disaster, when some horses bumped together, tripped one another up, and threw mounts and riders into a tangled pile-up in the middle of the track. One horse was killed and six jockeys severely injured, and the accident sparked a storm of protest and demands for new and stricter rules governing the race. But such tragedies have occurred rarely in the Derby's long history, and they haven't dissuaded owners, from dozens of different countries, from continuing to enter their horses in what is probably the world's most prestigious racing event.

Women and Law

IT WAS NOT UNTIL the 1920s that the Privy Council decided that under Canadian law, a woman was "a person." "And the world of law," says Professor J. Desmond Morton, Q.C., "is still (some would say regrettably still) a world of men." Our society, he feels, has drawn too little advantage from the commonsense of women, and it's up to women to do something about it.

In a series of five radio talks on Women and Law, beginning in part I of Trans-Canada Matinee on Wednesday, May 29, at 2:03 (2:33 on CBX), Professor Morton tells his feminine listeners that "the law is there to serve you," and tries to persuade them to take an intelligent interest in it, and not to leave law reform to the lawyers. Change, he points out, is accomplished only by pressure. Common law, he insists, is a subject in which women should be interested, and he asks (and answers) some pertinent questions about it in the series, hoping that his provocative views will provoke women into action.

Among matters he scrutinizes in the weekly series are contracts and magazine salesmen, credit buying, the drinking driver, bail and divorce. It's important, too, he feels, for school children to learn basic facts about the law.

Desmond Morton is Professor of Law at Osgoode Hall Law School in Toronto. Last year he was heard on radio's University of the Air in a series of entertaining and highly informative talks on law.

The Music of HANDEL Each Wednesday on CBC Radio

HANDEL WAS a prolific composer, a musical volcano that is by no means extinct—his music is still performed and loved all over the world two centuries after his death although only a fraction of his great output remains in high popularity.

CBC Radio listeners have an opportunity of hearing many old Handel favourites and other works rarely if ever given concert performances today, in the new edition of The Music of . . . series which Alan Sangster has presented for the last decade. The Music of Handel began Wednesday night, April 3, at 11:05, and will be heard weekly at the same time. Over the years listeners have followed Sangster through the recorded music of Mozart, Beethoven, Berlioz, Mahler, Haydn, and other great composers. His program notes illuminate the journey with humour and insight.

The May 29 program will include the conclusion of the oratorio Joshua and the Oboe Sonata in C Minor.

Handel (1685-1759) went to London in the reign of Queen Anne, in the same year that the cross was fitted to the top of the dome of the new St. Paul's, and in spite of his foreign birth and his atrocious English accent which never greatly improved, he became as ardent a British patriot as any Cockney wheeling his barrow past the Cathedral.

Handel was an extremely generous, proud, sensitive man with a temper which could flare up dangerously (he once threatened to throw one of his spoilt primadonnas out of the window), but he usually kept his head with admirable restraint, though seething inside, which gave him something of a reputation for benignancy. Although he was romantic and fond of women, he avoided scandal, and stayed single.

Handel was a first-rate opportunist. All his business ventures, and he had many, were on the grand scale, sometimes to the detriment of his purse when he was too stubborn to cater to fickle public taste. This hard-headed business sense was something which his father, a German surgeon-barber, was sure no musician could ever acquire. He insisted that young Handel study for the law, and refused him musical instruction. But as a lad Handel secretly practised on a clavichord in the attic, and when it finally came to his father's notice that the boy showed promise, Handel was given the training he wanted. He did, however, finish his law course, and the legal knowledge he acquired was of inestimable value in his entertainment enterprises.

He found the atmosphere he needed for free musical expression and enlarging his bank account on his first visit to England in 1712 to produce his opera Rinaldo. By 1726 he had become a naturalized British subject and a leading organist, operatic composer and producer. He wrote 40 operas for production in London, and over two dozen oratorios. He excelled at oratorios. Although it was a field he didn't begin to explore until he was 53—by 18th-century standards an old man—it made him famous.

3. The New York Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Rafael Kubelik:

Concerto for

Orchestra ..... Bela Bartok

11:00 p.m.—Late Concert
(11:05 p.m. on CBX)

A new keyboard artist explores the "improvisational" character of a familiar concerto, formed around a "poetic idea" of the composer's. The concerto is coupled with a teenager's first symphony—one, "that is reminiscent of the genius of Mozart at the same age"—age 17! (Rene Dumesnil.)

Featuring pianist Tamas Vasary with the Bamberger Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Felix Prohaska. Producer, Benjamin Horch.

Poet and Peasant

Overture ..... von Suppe

Concerto No. 1 in E flat

major ..... Franz Liszt

Symphony in C

major ..... Georges Bizet

Changing Communist World

A ONE-DAY CONFERENCE on "The Changing Communist World" will be held in Toronto on Thursday, May 30. Sponsored by the United Nations Association of Canada, the conference will feature four speakers who will discuss various aspects of the Soviet world today. CBC radio will broadcast a special one-hour program from the conference on Thursday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. It will consist of tape-recorded excerpts from the talks given earlier in the day by the first three speakers, and a live pick-up of the final speech. The topics and speakers are as follows:

Ferment Among the Soviet Intellectuals — by Dr. Richard Pipes, associate director, Russian Research Centre, Harvard University. Born in Poland in 1923 and educated there and at Cornell and Harvard Universities, Dr. Pipes is the author of a number of historical studies of Russia and the Soviet Union, and editor of The Russian Intelligentsia (Columbia University Press, 1961).

The Changing Soviet Bloc — by Dr. Gordon Skilling, director of the newly-formed Centre for Russian and East European Studies at the University of Toronto. Much of his time in recent years has been spent in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union; last year he visited all the satellite countries except Albania.

The Changing Role of the Soviet Manager — by Dr. Joseph S. Berliner, professor of economics, Syracuse University. A Harvard scholar, Dr. Berliner is regarded as an authority on the problems of factory management under the Soviet planning system, which has been through many changes in recent years and is apparently due for more. He is the author of Factory and Manager in the USSR and Soviet Economic Aid.

Is Soviet Foreign Policy Changing? — by Dr. Alexander Dallin, director of the Russian Institute, Columbia University. He is a consultant to the United States' State Department and the RAND Corporation, and lectures at the Foreign Service Institute in Washington. He has recently published a study of The Soviet Union at the United Nations (Praeger, 1962).

The conference has been organized by Willson Woodside, national director of the United Nations Association in Canada.

COOK'S TOUR

with Mat Gauer

RECIPES FEATURED ON
"LADIES FIRST" EACH THURSDAY

ESCARGOTS OR SNAILS (Appetizer)

COURT BOUILLON (short)

- 1 cup water
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 1 onion
- 3 cloves (whole)
- Celery (tops)
- Bay leaf
- 1 tsp. vinegar

Simmer a half an hour, then strain.

TO PREPARE ESCARGOTS:

- ¾ cup butter
- 2 tsp. chopped green onion
- 1 clove (pressed garlic)
- 1 tsp. parsley
- Chives
- Salt and pepper to taste

Cream butter and add all other ingredients. Poach snails in court bouillon for 3 minutes. Drain on paper towel. Put a nugget of butter mixture in each shell, insert snail and seal with more butter mixture.

Place in hot oven 6-7 minutes to heat shell and snail.

Serve on French bread.

CBC Performers on Tour

— With Armed Guard

UNDER SOME OF the most trying and monotonous conditions nature has to offer, Canadian armed forces detachments in the Gaza Strip carry out, with discipline and efficiency, their patrol of this far frontier.

As part of the United Nations Emergency Force set up to police the Gaza Strip and the Old Egypt-Palestine border in Sinai, they perform their tedious tasks unrelieved by change—unrelieved that is, except for the one time each year that a group of Canadian entertainers, donating time and talent, makes the trek half-way around the world to bring the boys in the desert a little bit of home.

This year, as in the past two, this group of performers (changed in personnel but still under the banner of CBC Concert Party — Canada Entertainers) will play a gruelling schedule of 12 shows in 10 days before troops not only from Canada, but from Sweden, Yugoslavia, Denmark, Brazil and India.

Headed by vocalists Shirley Harmer and Tommy Common, and ragtime pianist Alex Read, the group of 13 entertainers as well as executive producer Ken Dalziel, producer Don MacDonald and technician Jim Nihda left May 12. Others in the group are French-Canadian vocalist Claudette, dancer Agota Gabor, magician Robert Downey, fiddler Al Cherny and musicians under Bert Niosi. The musicians are vibraphonist Peter Appleyard, pianist Lloyd Edwards, trumpeter Don Johnson, guitarist Al Harris and bassist Howard Morris.

Organizer Dalziel, who has trekked alongside his performers every dusty mile of the previous two Middle East trips did not delude the artists as they departed. "It's going to be a rugged trip, bucket seats and no red carpet treatment. We are going just the way the rest of the troops are going. It's all part of the game," he philosophizes.

How do the performers like it, If past trips are any judge, says Dalziel, they like it "just fine."

"Just fine"—despite the need of travelling with armed escorts across the lung-clogging desert, of sleeping huddled together in freezing nighttime temperatures and sweltering the following mornings, of breakfasting on hard-boiled eggs and ginger ale (the only sanitary things available away from the Army bases), of contracting digestive ailments not so politely termed "gyppo guts."

On this forthcoming trip, the CBC Concert Party was to begin its performance schedule Thursday, May 16, with an evening show for the Swedish Battalion, followed on the next two evenings by shows for Yugoslav and Danish battalions.

The first show before Canadian troops was to be on Sunday, May 19, at Camp Rafah (the base headquarters), then two shows the following day, one on the international frontier, the other, an evening Shirley Harmer show to be recorded for broadcast in Canada on the CBC radio network.

The troupe then moves on for shows at the UNEF hospital, at the Brazilian and Indian battalions, and at the most remote outpost of Sharm el Sheikh on the rocky southern tip of the Sinai peninsula overlooking the Straits of Tiran.

POPULAR BACHELOR

Pat Napier (centre) is the most popular man in Kingfisher Cove—CBC-TV's mythical resort near Halifax. Each Saturday on the program Kingfisher Cove, his bachelor lodge is invaded by visitors who are put to work producing music for your entertainment. Around Pat are his regular "house guests" (left to right) singers Jean Marshall and Clarence Fleiger, pianist Carol Hughes and harpist Phyllis Ensher.
